The direct path is already in the model; each panel's timing must be known; interference hurts both equally